

Big Enrollment Golden Glove

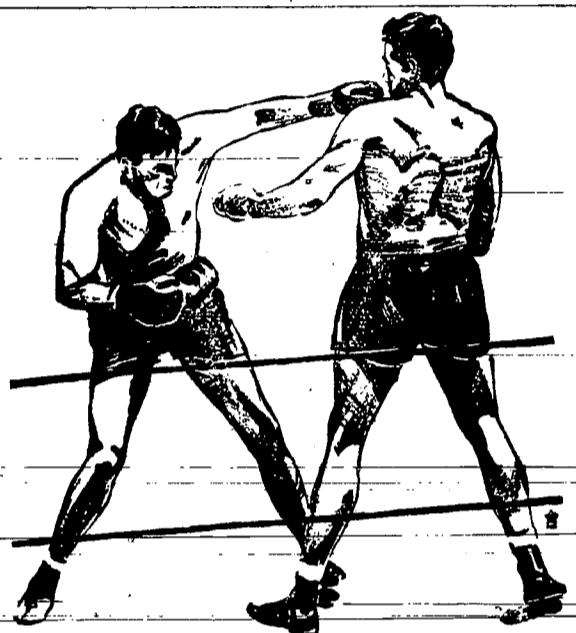

Preliminaries Jan. 18, 19, 20;
Semi-Finals and Finals Jan. 25, 26

5 Grayling Entries; Heavy CCC Entry

That there may be another Jimmy Adamick in northern Michigan is indicated by the heavy enrollment of applicants from northern Michigan communities and CCC Camps in Grayling's spectacular Golden Gloves' Boxing Show which opens with unusual competitive preliminaries on January 18, 19, and 20, and semi-finals and finals on January 25 and 26 at ing and you will enjoy every minute of this fight action. With the Bay City Times as sponsors of this affair under the management of the Rube Babbitt Chapter of the Izaak Walton League, they have endeavored to make Grayling's initial Golden Gloves boxing show the biggest boxing event ever presented in this part of the State.

Two well known referees have been assigned to this tournament by the Michigan AAU. Bobbie Armstrong of Jackson, will be the third man in the ring on Jan. 18 and 19, and George McMullen of Midland will referee the bouts on Jan. 20, 25 and 26. Through the Grayling School gymnasium. With applications on hand totaling about 120 entrants and requests for applications still arriving from every small town and large city in this part of Michigan, the people of this vicinity are now afforded the opportunity of enjoying the excitement which heretofore has been confined to the public in the larger cities like Bay City and Detroit, and in those areas the public's reaction has been so sensational that seating demands far exceed the supply of tickets.

Arrangements are now being made to accommodate over 1,000 people in the school gym. Already the requests for seats locally and reservations from outside communities indicate a peak attendance for northern Michigan's initial Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament.

The continuous competition is certain to be hotly contested, and there should be much interest in the entrants from Traverse City, Cheboygan, Roscommon, Hillman, Onaway, Boyne City, Alpena, West Branch, Lewiston, Frederic, Grayling, Boyne Falls, Elk Rapids, etc. The success of Joe Louis, Jimmy Adamick and Al Netlowski has inspired all contestants to follow in their steps. With the price of tickets set at the bargain cost of 25¢ for general admission and 40¢ for reserved seats for the preliminaries and 35¢ and 50¢ for the two final nights certainly every opportunity is afforded the public to see every bout, and the many bouts scheduled should run the affair into the early hours of the morning and communities there is certain to be a mighty struggle for team honors in Grayling's Golden Gloves boxing tournament, and it is expected that Grayling's team will set a swift pace for all competing teams.

The Grayling team will fight under the sponsorship of Minnie Hartley's Cash & Carry grocery store, and they have filed one of the most formidable lists of amateur boxers, and they are expected to go far in this tournament and other final tournaments. Leo Lovely will represent the Hartley team in the 135 lb. class; George Smith and Grant Giffin in the next weight limit, and Rudy Harrison will enter his weight as 160 lbs.

Rudy will head the Hartley team with an outstanding amateur boxing record in CCC competition. He is a greatly improved fighter, who is seldom off balance, can hit hard and is in excellent condition because he takes his training seriously. Leo Lovely is rapidly coming to the front in amateur boxing, and the enthusiasm of this tournament is to keep your eye on Leo Lovely. George Smith and Grant Giffin are serious in their training and ambitions, and the Hartley team assures Grayling no disappointments.

The gymnasium is open each evening to permit the training of all interested contestants. Ted Burr, who has an enviable record in boxing and won the Michigan National Guard championship in 1930, is acting as trainer and helping the boys. Ted is giving the boys the benefit of his experience.

The tournament promises to be the highlight of the season, and with accredited officials, and outstanding judges in the persons of Al Massey, a former reputable professional boxer, and Dr. McKitto of Gaylord, nothing has been overlooked to give the affair the desired stimulus for a big boxing show.

Following are the Roscommon and Frederic entrants:

Roscommon—
Kenneth VanCamp, 140 lbs.
Clayton Roseling, 159 lbs.
Harry Myers, 165 lbs.
Sponsored by Roscommon merchants.

DISTRICT OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS PRESENT

When the officers and some of the directors of the East Michigan Tourist association held a district meeting in Grayling Saturday evening they were met with old-time Grayling hospitality. Everyone here was glad to see everyone from somewhere else, and all were happy.

It was a fine gesture on the part of President Bruce Anderson, Lansing, Vice President T. P. Peterson, Grayling, and Secretary T. F. Marston, Bay City, to bring this meeting to Grayling. All met at Shoppeagons Inn where a fine banquet was served.

"T. P." (Peterson) welcomed the visitors and said the meeting would give the people of Crawford county an opportunity to find out what the Association was actually doing for the good of North-Eastern Michigan for the development of the tourist business.

A decree was granted in the divorce case of June Underwood vs. Joseph B. Underwood, while the divorce case of Willy Johnson vs. Bessie Johnson was dismissed from the calendar.

In the case of Pauline Edmonds, et al vs. Michigan Central Railroad Co., et al, a decree quieting title was entered.

The remainder of the cases that appeared on the calendar were continued. They were:

Grayling Box Company vs. Carl E. Warnick, and Wards' Three Pines; the divorce case of Alice Shaw vs. Walter S. Shaw; the matter of the assignment for the benefit of creditors of Schweitzer & Co., Inc. and the bill of accounting case of Herluf Sorenson as administrator of the estate of James W. Sorenson, deceased vs. Frank S. Sales as administrator of the estate of George Sorenson, deceased.

Outdoor shows at Detroit, Toledo, Saginaw and West Branch; 20,000 seals; 75,000 emblems or stickers; 20,000 envelope stuffers; 100,000 blotters; 2,000,000 books of matches; plates and maps to 50 weekly newspapers.

Photos and publicity; 500 flashards; 2,500 calendars and other miscellaneous articles. Information offices will be provided at Columbus, Ohio; Detroit, Chicago and Cleveland. And newspaper and magazine advertising.

Of the cost for these activities, $9,972.23 will be paid by the E. M. T. and $25,000.00 by the State. The total amount of the budget will amount to $31,500.00.

Besides President Anderson and Vice President Peterson, other speakers were Emmet Richards, editor of the Alpena News; Glenn MacDonald, managing editor Bay City Times; Al Weber, editor Cheboygan Observer; John Bingham, mayor of Alpena; Ben Wright, secretary Chamber of Commerce of Alpena; W. J. Merrick, Gaylord, and others. Among others present from out of the city were Leslie Kefgen and Norman Fry, both of Bay City; Henry M. Hollister, manager Bancroft House, Saginaw; E. P. Mifflin, Lansing; and D. E.

Matheson, editor Herald-News, Roscommon.

It was a wonderful meeting and those present must have been impressed with the splendid work the Association is doing and with the fine service that is being given by Secretary T. F. Marston.

Snow Train's Happy Crowd

The winter term of Circuit court convened at the Courthouse Tuesday afternoon, with Judge John C. Shaffer on the bench. It was a short session, closing Wednesday forenoon.

In the non-jury civil case of Morley Brothers, a Michigan Corporation vs. Ahine Sorenson, et al., a default judgment was entered and not contested.

In the matter of the Assignment for the benefit of creditors of Marius Hanson, doing business as the Bank of Grayling, orders were issued for the sale of three small pieces of property.

In the case of Pauline Edmonds, et al vs. Michigan Central Railroad Co., et al, a decree quieting title was entered.

As usual the toboggan slides were the big attraction and loaded toboggans were soon flashing down the icy slides. And when "Suicide Sal," the longest toboggan in the world, with its twenty passengers, shot down the slides, and not halting before reaching the very limit of the slide, over 2,000 feet, the much frightened but thrilled occupants breathed a sigh of relief but all wanted to do it again.

The ice rink was alive with skaters and among them were several who might have been eligible for the Sonja Henie revue. They too were having a grand time. And on the skijump and the ski trails others were enjoying their favorite winter sport.

Sverre Kolterud, 28-year-old Norwegian ski jumper, of Oslo, Norway, gave an interesting exhibition of skiing skill. Kolterud is a member of the Sonja Henie troupe, now appearing in Detroit.

Kolterud came to America early last month and appeared in a number of events in the east. He won the skiing championship of Canada, the Eastern championship and the cross country. While here he made the most of his time by taking advantage of the ski trails at the park. Mile after mile he swooped down the sharp inclines in a manner only an expert can. He says he was greatly impressed with the ski lift layout but said that with a little more snow they would be still better. He intimated that possibly at some time in the future he might want to come to Grayling and start a class in skiing, and believed he could secure many pupils in Detroit and other places.

Kolterud spoke English brokenly and when he met John Bruun, who speaks not only our language, and Danish, but Norwegian also, those two had a good talk fest. No doubt the former was glad to have the opportunity of conversing in his native language.

Scenery Was Wonderful

Never before has the Grayling Winter park been so attractive and beautiful. The snow bound area, flanked all about with pine trees, whose branches were heavy with sparkling snow, was a picture that would have thrilled anyone who loves the beauties of nature. The scene from Johnson Hill was marvelous and well worth the effort to reach that lofty summit.

Comfort Everywhere

With the improvement in the grounds and buildings the visiting public finds adequate parking area and plenty of housing convenience, all nicely arranged and comfortably warmed. And the loud speakers dispensing enjoyable music, the skaters and everyone on the grounds feel an air of festivity and gladness.

Toledo and Detroit Trains Next Sunday

A snow train from Toledo as well as two from Detroit, are scheduled for next Sunday. Last year the Toledoans had planned to come here but the weather man just wouldn't have it that way and hundreds were destined to disappointment. Let us hope that it will not occur again. If conditions are favorable these new visitors will have the time of their lives for there is no better way to enjoy the thrill of living than by snow sports. The train is being sponsored by LaSalle & Koch, a department store in Toledo.

After the perfect day we had last Sunday we're sure it is going to require more than two trains to accommodate the Detroit crowd next Sunday.

Orderly Crowd

Never since the Winter Park has been in action have we seen here a more orderly crowd of young people. Not a single thing happened to mar the sensibilities of anyone either on the train or here in Grayling. It was just a crowd of fine young people out to have a good time.

Not an accident was reported during that day.

Grayling Boys Thrill Spectators

As a feature with a thrill, Kenneth Gothro and Hurl Deckrow did a toboggan race down the slide. Standing up on separate toboggans, they raced down from the top of the hill to the bottom, the contest being declared a tie.

GRAYLING WINTER SPORTS AS SEEN BY FREE PRESS WRITER

It is always interesting to get the views of others on our winter sports. Miss Sybil Bingay, daughter of Malcomb Bingay, noted Free Press writer, was among those from Detroit to take in the snow train trip to Grayling's winter sports park Sunday. Her interesting story appeared in Monday morning's edition of the Free Press. It reads as follows:

Grayling, Mich. Jan. 9.—A perfect winter day with fast toboggan slides and plenty of snow greeted the 400 winter sports enthusiasts who piled off the first snow train at Grayling Sunday afternoon after a five-hour trip from Detroit. The snow-seekers ignored the fact that the mercury was down to 16 above. Open trucks carried them to the Grayling Winter Sports Park.

It was the opening of the third season for the snow train and skis and skates occupied a prominent place in the five coaches in the train. The train arrived at Grayling at 1:15 p. m. and by 5:30 p. m. the "tired" travelers, rosy-cheeked from the cold, were more than glad to have the warmth and comfort of the coaches for the return home.

Ski Champion on Trip

Among those who made the first trip of the season was Sverre Kolterud, twenty-eight-year-old Norwegian ski champion who had been in Detroit several days with Sonja Henie's troupe.

Kolterud explained that he was anxious to try outdoor skiing once more. He arrived in Detroit expecting to do exhibition skiing with the Henie troupe, but lack of space at Detroit's Olympia prevented.

Born about 40 miles from Oslo, Kolterud has been skiing since he was 6 years old, and before turning professional about a year ago had won several championships, including the Canadian and Eastern cross-country. He will rejoin the Henie troupe at Miami in February and go on with them to Los Angeles, appearing before that at the ice carnival to be held in Cleveland.

Demonstrates Skill

Kolterud regretfully announced that he would be unable to jump at Grayling as he did not have his jumping skis, but he did attempt to negotiate the short jump and demonstrate his remarkable ability as several hundred would-be skiers watched enviously.

Snowtrain officials announced that a special train to Grayling would leave Detroit at 8 a. m. each Sunday just as long as weather conditions permit. Sound amplifiers and an enclosed dance floor have been added to the sports park attractions this year in addition to the two ice-skating rinks, ski jumps and toboggan slides.

WILL SPONSOR SAFETY CLINIC

The Michigan Press Association Inc., of which the Crawford Avalanche is a sustaining member, announced this week that newspapers of Michigan will sponsor a "safety clinic" at their 63rd annual meeting Jan. 27 to 29 at Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Michigan's growing highway accident toll and how it can be reduced will be the theme of talks by Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent, state department of public instruction; Murray D. Van Wagoner, commissioner, state highway department, and Oscar Olander, commissioner, state police department.

"The 'safety clinic' as a part of the newspapers' annual convention is a recognition of the public responsibility which the press maintains in Michigan," said William Berkey, Cassopolis Vigilant, chairman of the program committee. "Feeling that newspapers can best serve the state during 1938 by waging an aggressive campaign against automobile deaths, we have invited these three authorities in engineering, education and enforcement to advise us how it can be achieved."

The newspaper publishers, during their annual meeting, will also hear George Slocum, president, Advertising Federation of America; W. W. Loomis, president, National Editorial Association; W. H. Conrad, national classified advertising expert; Floyd Hockenbush, publisher, "Circulation Management" and Dr. M. S. Rice, Detroit Methodist Metropolitan church. Women will have a luncheon Friday, January 28, with Mrs. Stuart Fraser, acting director of the state consumers' bureau, as a speaker.

Radio station WKAR (850 kilocycles) will broadcast the safety program featuring talks by Elliott, Van Wagoner and Olander.

Couple Celebrates Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. James Perry celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary on January 7. As it was close to the end of the week the celebration proper was held Saturday and Sunday. This fine couple enjoyed the occasion with some 60 of their relatives present, many of whom were from out of town. Several friends from Grayling were also among the guests, making up a group of some 76 people.

For the wedding dinner on Sunday the table was beautiful with an arrangement of golden calendulas and red roses, and centered with a four-tiered wedding cake. Throughout the rooms festoons of gold crepe paper streamers here and there gave the home a festive air.

When Mr. and Mrs. Perry renewed their wedding vows, their oldest son William and wife, who were celebrating their silver wedding anniversary that fell on the same date as that of their parents, were the attendants. It was a jolly occasion of feasting and the bride and groom were presented with many beautiful gifts and received a host of congratulatory messages.

Mrs. Perry was formerly Zoa Tatro and was born in Newport, Monroe County, Michigan, Sept. 12, 1871, and Mr. Perry was born in St. Lawrence county, New York, May 3, 1866. The couple met in Pinconning and on January 7, 1888 spoke their nuptial vows at St. Mary's church in Bay City, the Rev. Fr. H. J. H. Schutjes officiating. Incidentally Mr. and Mrs. Perry received the second marriage license that was issued in Bay county that year. They came to Grayling five years ago from Detroit, and purchased the home on Norway street that was the old home of the John Olson family.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry are the parents of four sons and three daughters, William of Cheboygan; Burt of Detroit; Mrs. Leona Mattoon, Pontiac; Mrs. Clara Cardinal, Pontiac; Mrs. Clara Cardinal, Mrs. Mabel Wells, Lloyd and Vern of Grayling, and there are 27 grand children and three great grand children.

Frederic School Notes

(23 Years Ago)

Andrew Brown, president of the Board of Education, was a caller in our high school room Monday of this week.

It was an enthusiastic crowd that filled the hall Friday night and cheered the boys on to their victory and helped the girls hold their opponents as well as they did. The two teams from Grayling had driven, leaving Grayling at 6:00 p. m. and arriving here little before eight. The girls game was interesting and well done, when you consider that they are just beginners. The final score in the game was 17 to 8 in Grayling's favor. When the whistle for the boy's game sounded it seemed that all realized that a good natured fight was on. Our boys were at their best; the guards could not be goaled upon and the forwards showed that they were in tip-top condition.

They shot baskets from all positions in the hall. At the close of the first half the score was 23 to 4 in our favor. Grayling showed a little faster work during the second half, bringing the final score 16 to 47.

Many a business has been killed by advertising, but it's always the other fellow's advertising that does it.

It will be all right with us if Congress once again declares its independence.

IS THE STOMACH TO BLAME?

In an effort to find why the stomach is blamed for so many ills, Dr. Fred M. Smith of Iowa has studied the effects of irritation in the appendix, gall bladder and colon in relation to the stomach. His studies explain many of the common symptoms of indigestion. It is common experience that constipation, indiscretions in diet, gall bladder trouble, as well as worry and mental stress produce a sense of fullness, gas in the stomach, heartburn, biliousness, sour eructations and vague abdominal pain.

These symptoms manifest themselves as stomach trouble to the patient, for which hundreds of patent medicines are sold. Dr. Smith attempted to learn about these symptoms by introducing a rubber balloon into the stomach so it would reflect any abnormal movement, tension, or reaction. This balloon was attached to a kinematograph which recorded each impression the stomach received. Then he introduced irritants to the experimental animal's intestine, gall bladder and appendix, noting that abnormal contractions of the stomach occurred immediately. Under the conditions of the experiment the stomach did not empty well, a spasm appearing at the outlet or pyloric end of the stomach, giving rise to pain and a feeling of fullness and sometimes vomiting in the animal. This reaction, of course, is a reflex, nervous connection between the organs, and the stomach carries the sensation to the brain.

Similar reactions have been noted in patients who are constipated, as well as in those in whom a fear is present. We know that most of the symptoms of gastro-intestinal disease are due to abnormal motility of the gut, so that whether the illness is real or imaginary he sensations traveling from the brain to the spinal cord, and to the involuntary nervous system which controls the intestinal tract reflects these conditions at a motility change.

These changes, of course, express themselves sometimes as diarrhea associated with fear, sometimes as constipation with mental tension, and other times by vomiting, while, of course, headache, palpitation, cold hands and feet and pain in the back of the neck frequently accompany nervousness.

The most common irritation is chronic or acute infection, so that the symptoms of chronic gall bladder disease and acute appendicitis and pelvic disease usually begin high up in the abdomen where the stomach is located. When such symptoms occur we should not blame the stomach immediately and seek soothing medicines, but, rather, a diagnosis should be made so that the correct condition can be recognized and remedies applied. Gastric irritation may be direct or indirect. Overeating, the use of excessive amounts of tobacco, badly diseased gums and teeth, and lack of rest and relaxation injure the stomach directly. However, the food of the various animals proves that the stomach is not as easily injured as is commonly supposed, but we are inclined to trust our sensations and blame the stomach when it is not the source of the trouble.

Dr. Smith attempted to learn about these symptoms by introducing a rubber balloon into the stomach so it would reflect any abnormal movement, tension, or reaction. LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

by Thornton W. Burgess

BUSTER BEAR PLAYS A TRICK

BUSTER BEAR and Jumper the Hare had had their heads together. This doesn't mean that they really touched heads. Oh, my no! No, indeed! Jumper is too wise to get so close to Buster Bear as that. It means that he had made plans together. If Reddy Fox had known about those plans Reddy would certainly have kept away from that part of the Green Forest. But he didn't know about them, and so he didn't keep away from that part of the Green Forest.

You see, it was there that Jumper the Hare spent most of his time, and so it was there that Reddy was spending most of his time now, for he was bound that he would catch Jumper to pay him for making him the laughing stock of all the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. At first Reddy had been afraid, very much afraid, that he might meet Buster Bear there.

So Reddy, because he is very smart and sly, spent a great deal of time looking for the places where Jumper made his bed and for the places where he ate. Then he would hide near one of these and wait patiently for Jumper to come. But somehow Jumper always went to a place where Reddy was not hiding. The truth is, Jumper knew perfectly what Reddy was doing, and so he never went twice to the same place. That is, he never went twice very near together. If he took a nap under a big hemlock branch and then went out to get a bite to eat, he would finish his nap under another tree instead of going back to the first one. So, though Reddy often found places Jumper had just left and hid beside them patiently for Jumper to come back, it never was of the least bit of use.

But after Jumper and Buster Bear had had their heads together Jumper seemed to grow careless. Yes, sir, that is the way it seemed. Reddy Fox noticed it right away and grinned wickedly. Three times he saw Jumper dozing just in front of a great fallen tree. Then for a fourth time he saw Jumper sit in the same place. By and by Jumper began to nod. Then his eyes closed in the sleepiest way. Reddy grinned and licked his chops. Jumper's eyes opened, closed again, opened once more, then closed and remained closed. Reddy watched a long time before he stirred, but there was no sign from Jumper the Hare. He certainly looked to be fast, very fast, asleep.

Softly, ever so softly, Reddy Fox tiptoed forward. Jumper did not move. A few steps nearer, and still Jumper seemed fast asleep. Reddy stopped long enough to grin, a wicked, hungry grin. This time he would catch Jumper and then he would see if the other people would laugh at and make fun of him any more! Softly, softly, very, very softly he stole forward until with one great jump he would be able to land right on poor Jumper. Very, very carefully Reddy fixed his hind legs to make the spring, and then—well—then he landed right exactly where Jumper had been, but wasn't. You see, Jumper had been just pretending to be asleep, and when Reddy had jumped, he had jumped, too.

Now, Jumper had jumped right over the old tree trunk and Reddy sprang after him. But Reddy is not quite so good a jumper as Jumper the Hare, and while Jumper went clear over the fallen tree, Reddy landed on top of it, moaning to jump down on the other side. But he didn't. No, sir, he didn't. Instead he fell off backward with a scream of fright. What was the trouble? Why, Buster Bear had been lying down on the other side of that old tree, and when Jumper leaped over it Reddy knew that Reddy was close at hand, and so he jumped up with a dreadful growl. Just as he had done the first time he saw Buster Bear, Reddy put his tall between his legs and started for home as fast as ever he could go.

"Ha, ha, ha!" shouted Buster Bear.
"Ho, ho, ho!" shouted Jumper the Hare.
"Hee, hee, hee!" tittered Sammy Jay, who had happened along just in time to see the fun.

Children in Court

Judge Malcolm Hatfield

With approximately 50 per cent of all school children outside the church, and our public schools and colleges prohibited from teaching religion, where are such youngsters to gain a knowledge of religion, morality, and character?

As long as religious training is eliminated from the curriculum, where are we to secure our leaders of the future? Without character, intelligence is nothing more than a mockery, for character is necessary to direct intelligence. Unless our leaders in the future possess character along with intelligence, there is grave danger that our present civilization will vanish.

Therefore, if character is necessary to direct intelligence, why wouldn't it be feasible for all churchmen to unite and insist that some form of religious training be given to the twelve or fifteen million youngsters who are not now and never will be affiliated with any church? Statistics reveal that most of the three million criminals at large today have had no religious training.

Continuity of Wedding

Ring and Eternal Love

When the bridegroom places the wedding ring on his chosen one's finger and says, "With this ring I thee wed," he little realizes the history that lies behind the simple wedding band.

Long before the ring became a symbol of matrimony, it had a mystic significance with the ancients, a writer in the Washington Star. The circular continuity of the ring was accepted as a type of eternity and hence of the stability of affection. Often the rings were inscribed with loving wishes.

Coming up to the Middle ages, the ring often was used at solemn betrothal ceremonies. Frequently lovers who were about to separate for long periods of time demonstrated their lasting affection by going through the ring ceremony.

Even greater significance to the custom was given by the invention of the linked ring. Made with a double and often a triple link which turned upon a pivot, it could be turned into one solid ring. It was customary to break these rings apart at the betrothal. This solemn ceremony was done in front of a witness. The prospective bride and her bridegroom each kept a ring while the witness was given the central one of the trio. When the marriage contract was fulfilled at the altar the three parts of the ring were again united and the ring used at the ceremony.

A custom that has survived in a revised way to the modern day was the habit of engraving simple sentiments in the nuptial hoop. Rhymes to rival Ogden Nash were inscribed in many Sixteenth and Seventeenth century wedding rings.

"Our contract was Heaven's act," "In thee, my choice, I do rejoice," and "God Above, Encrease Our Love," express the medieval version of the couple's happy sentiments.

Many Poisonous Plants

Grow in Fields, Marshes

More than 200 different species of poisonous plants, according to estimates, grow in some states. Some are cultivated in gardens, but the majority grow wild in fields, marshes, woods, or along the roadside.

Some are dangerous because they may be eaten by humans, particularly children, either because they resemble plants known to be harmless or because the fruit or flowers are attractive. Among the plants poisonous when eaten by man are:

Lily-of-the-valley — A cultivated ornamental of the garden.

Pokeweed — A tall perennial herb common in clearings, open woods, and along the borders of woods. The most poisonous part of this plant is the large, fleshy root. Children are sometimes poisoned from eating the berries.

Monkshood — Plants cultivated in the garden for ornament.

Red baneberry — A native perennial herb found in rich woodlands. The red fruit of this plant and its relative, the white baneberry, are poisonous when eaten.

Thorn apple or Jimson weed — An annual herb found in cultivated fields and waste places on light soils. The fruit and seeds are especially poisonous.

Other plants to guard against include the water hemlock, the European bittersweet, the common elder or elderberry, and purple fox-glove.

Gion Matsuri is Among

Old Japanese Festivals

Among the many festivals of Japan is the Gion Matsuri. It follows the tradition of the luxurious Ashikaga dynasty, whose emperors built the Silver and Golden Pavilions, two of a collection of gemlike shrines in the Kyoto district, says the New York Times. Though Toyotomi and Yoshimitsu, rulers who built the pavilions, were tyrants, their reigns saw marked progress in Japan's arts and crafts.

The Gion ceremonial brings back something of the splendor of old Japan. In the procession officers, pages and halberd-bearers, handsomely costumed in the pattern of imperial days, follow horsemen and gilded chariots to the Gion shrine. Here and at Kyoto's former imperial palace services, with many priests in attendance, are held, the object being to propitiate the deities of the shrine. Features of the fete are decorated cars carried on the shoulders of men, armored knights, musicians and the dance of the chigo, or sacred page boy.

Sydney Island Cats

Sydney island of the Phoenix group is noted for its hordes of ravenous cats. They are huge brutes and will wade through water, bank of the feline tribe, to reach small fish on the reef. Their advent dates from an attack on copra and on young coconuts by swarms of rats. The cats came, 150 of them, from Sydney, brought by an ill-advised planter. They made short work of the rats and then began breeding at a rapid rate. Curious things happen on the islands. Thus, though Sydney and Hull islands are near neighbors the fish caught around Hull island are edible while those at Sydney Island are poisonous. The natives can demonstrate this by a crude test. They place a bright silver coin in the flesh of a Sydney fish and after cooking reveal the presence of black spots upon it.

Odd Plan for Street Names

Venice attempts to preserve everything connected with its history. Its street names may be puzzling, but once many of them indicated the occupations of their residents. Thus the "Frezzeria" was so named because of the manufacturers of arrows who lived on it, the "Spadaria," because of its sword forgers, the "Salizzada dei Corazzieri" because of its breastplate shops, the "Fusieri" because of its spindle-makers.

The "Calle degli Specchieri" was so called because mirrors were sold there and the famous "Mercerie," which enters the Plaza San Marco under the clock tower, received that name because it was the economic center of Venice.

Stage Superstitions

An actress must find or have a rabbit's foot given her; it is fatal to buy one. It is bad luck to whistle in the dressing room or put shoes on a shelf. An umbrella opened over the head is, of course, the worst kind of a thing—but it is all right to open it downways. Cats bring good luck, especially black ones. A potato in the pocket shields from misfortune. Next to breaking a mirror, bringing peacock feathers into the theater is a calamity, and many an actor will grow faint at the sight of one.

Home of Beautiful Women

From time immemorial Arles, France, has been the home of beautiful women. It is one place where feminine beauty is so general that it becomes monotonous. In the ruins of the amphitheater here may be seen the gladiators' cells and the cages in which the wild beasts were kept between their battles in the arena. At Montmajour, near Arles, is the famous abbey of the Benedictines, dating from the Tenth century.

Dental Health

Oral prophylaxis is necessary, not only for the conservation of the teeth and supporting structures, but also as a preventive method against disease. Periodic dental examination must be made in order to correct pathologic conditions of the teeth and gums and also to enable any abnormal condition of the tissues of the cheeks, tongue, throat, glands or saliva to be discovered. These slight signals of distress may be warning that call for medical intervention, in order to avoid much needless sickness and suffering.

Many patients visit the dentist much more frequently than they do their family physician and the first symptoms of a general infection often occur as lesions in the oral tissues or cervical lymph glands. Usually these appear before the individual realizes that he is sick and enables the dentist, if he recognizes the condition, to help reduce the prevalence of these diseases and thus aid in raising the standard of health in the community.

The respiratory group of diseases is perhaps the most damaging of all infections of man. Though probably less is known of them as a group, than of those other diseases, yet the causative organism, mode of transmission and curative methods are known in many of them. They are all spread through discharges from the mouth or nose either by direct contact, droplet infection or indirectly by food or water. The organism can usually be obtained from the mucous membrane of the mouth, from around the teeth or from the saliva. Some of these diseases, such as T.B., measles, influenza, mumps, septic sore throat, pneumonia and others can be recognized by the well-informed dentist before systemic conditions are noted. In addition to this communicable group of diseases are those of a degenerative type such as result from foci of infection, which are so often present in the mouth or throat. These pave the way for pathologic conditions such as arthritis, neuritis and infections involving the heart, kidneys, stomach, eyes, appendix and other organs. They may also be the dominant etiologic factor in headache, anemia, loss of weight and febrile attacks. Thus we can see the bad mouth conditions by introducing other infections and by undermining the health and resistance of the individual, may have serious results. Recent surveys show that the average individual loses about seven days each year from sickness involving inability to work. Since about 75% of our citizens have infected mouths, any person can readily understand how defective and infective teeth can become a community liability in that health and income of the individual and group of individuals are adversely affected at such times. Similarly we can realize that children suffering from toothache or abscessed teeth may not be as successful in school work as normal children. Nearly all cases of mental backwardness are accompanied by defects in eyes, ears or teeth, but more backward children suffer from bad teeth than from any other abnormal condition. Consequently such a state causes a loss of health and vigour with the result that the child loses vitality and tends to become listless and unable to concentrate. There is also a psychological effect in that the child finds himself unable to keep abreast of his friends in studies and sports and as a result becomes discouraged and dejected and realizes his inferiority.

Healthy oral structures, including firm healthy teeth and healthy tissues surrounding the teeth, indicate high resistance to disease and are necessary factors in prevention. Inversely a filthy mouth, diseased tissue, inflamed gums and decayed teeth denote a lowered resistance and provide an ideal incubator for the propagation of disease organisms, indeed some so-called childhood diseases are practically kept in existence only by this means. Thus oral prophylaxis is a vital factor in reducing the number of carriers of disease.

Preventive dentistry is unquestionably the only way in which the majority of the public can hope to achieve and maintain mouth health on the most economic and efficient basis. This in turn can only be accomplished by a preventive dental program designed to reach not only the child, but also the expectant mother, for the formation for sound teeth is laid long before the child is born. At birth the first set of teeth is nearly completely formed and parts of the crowns of the first four permanent teeth are also present. The first step, then, is to ensure proper medical and dental care and proper diet for the mother. The formation of the teeth depends especially on the presence of sufficient quantities of inorganic salts, chiefly calcium and phosphorus. Also plenty of fresh air, proper exercise, sufficient rest and hygienic care are necessary. Various research workers have emphasized the importance of

WHAT EVERY DRIVER MUST KNOW

Pavement markings and traffic signs are for the motorists' protection. This explains on is both to coach you in p... for the examination upon your driver's license, and p you drive safely.

PAVEMENT MARKINGS

Yellow markings are painted on highways at curves, hills, and other danger spots to keep cars in the proper lanes. Don't use the center part of three-lane highways at these points. On four-lane roads, the yellow center lines warn that you may not drive farther to the left. Single yellow lines on four-lane roads are to direct cars into their proper lanes.

TRAFFIC CONTROL SIGNS

These notify you that certain acts are unlawful. They are erected by statutory authority, and violations of the rules they state will result in arrest.

Washington Notes And Comments

By Congressman Roy O. Woodruff, Tenth Michigan District.

In his message to the Congress at the beginning of the special session in November, President Roosevelt issued the warning that "an immediate task before the country is to try to increase the use of private capital to create employment." He added to that warning the threat that "If private enterprise does not respond, Government must take up the slack. What we can do covers so wide a field and so many subjects that it is not feasible to include them all in this message."

Mr. Roosevelt then, in his message to the Congress on January 3rd, outlined somewhat vaguely his policies of compulsion which he intends to follow in forcing finance, industry, agriculture, and labor to conform to those plans prepared by the anonymous New Deal planners and sponsored by Mr. Roosevelt himself. On the day following the delivery of his message to the Congress, he clarified his statements and expanded them somewhat at a press conference. It has now become clear that Mr. Roosevelt intends to throw the whole power of his position and Administration behind legislation to accomplish the following compulsions in American life:

1. That the financial and business leaders of the United States shall, within the next few days, pledge to him their full compliance and cooperation with his views and policies.

2. That the farmers and other owners of land may not till, plow, plant crops, or cut timber on their lands without consent and under the direction of the Federal Government.

3. That the owners of capital invested in industrial plants shall not close their plants without the consent of the Federal Government.

4. That the owners of industrial plants may not move their plants from one location to another without the consent of the Federal Government.

5. That manufacturers or other selling agencies shall not employ "high pressure" sales methods. This means that the Federal Government would pass on advertising, sales arguments, financing terms, etc., and approve only such of these sales methods as might be employed.

6. That manufacturers who originate or purchase new inventions or processes shall not have the protection of the patent laws in absolute proprietorship of their discoveries for a period of seventeen years, as is now provided for by the patent law. Instead, the Federal Government would, by regulation presumably, determine the conditions under which such new inventions or processes would be employed in industry and commerce.

7. That when new inventions or processes are discovered or originated, they shall be marketed immediately by their discoverers or originators, or by those who purchase such inventions or processes, under such terms as may be laid down by the Federal Government, regardless of the effect upon existing industry.

8. That all competition between large and small business shall be regulated by the Federal Government.

9. That organized labor must compose internal differences such as now exist between the American Federation of Labor and the C.I.O., as the President shall Lansing—Henry Ford successfully defied the "Blue Eagle" during NRA days. He continues to display the same defiant fighting spirit in his present battle with the National Labor Relations Board.

The flivver king of Dearborn has a well-earned reputation for courageous independence.

You will recall that 24 years ago, back in 1914, he precipitated a revolution in American industry by doing the simple and astounding thing of paying his workers a minimum daily wage of $5. At a time when the machine age "speeded up" was allegedly retiring workers at a progressive rate of early age, Ford did the opposite—he increased the average age of workers during each decade of the century.

This year bids well to bring a showdown in the labor fight between Ford, the motor independent, and the C.I.O., which views with considerable envy the rich fields of potential memberships in Ford's many factories.

Illegal Seizure

Ford's latest maneuver against the National Labor Relations Board, in appealing its recent verdict, is predicated on the extraordinary conditions which prevailed in Michigan during the sitdown strikes of 1937 when workers seized plants illegally and "got away with it."

The motor company in its petition maintains:

"The policy adopted and openly avowed by the C.I.O. and U.A.W. was that, in the very midst of an era of production and prosperity, the workers in a plant should not merely lay down their tools and cease to work, but should occupy the plant and prevent those who desire to work from doing so.

"In the epidemic of C.I.O. and U.A.W. sit-down strikes that swept the State of Michigan, industrial plants were seized by force and their production suspended. Men wishing to work were forcibly prevented from doing so and even forcibly restrained from leaving the seized plants. The Governor of the State of Michigan announced that ordinary agencies of law enforcement could not or would not function. Whether the Governor was forced to this by the action of the C.I.O. or whether the fault was his own, is not the question here.

"The important fact here is that industrial plants were in fact seized and their production was in fact suspended, that men wishing to work were thrown out and their families placed on relief, that the treasury of the State was in face depleted to pay for the relief and that purchasing power was destroyed."

Issue in Campaign?

Whether the Ford defense, as set forth, will be an issue in the coming gubernatorial campaign is yet to be revealed.

It is certain, however, that if the issue is raised, it will not be of the Democrats' choosing. And it is equally certain that the state administration, for many months, has been preparing an answer for it in the form of newspaper headlines of the Chicago labor riots and other blood-spilling battles. "Such did not happen in Michigan" will be the strategy, as reported at Lansing.

Ford's appeal statement raises a point of factual accuracy which apparently needs clarification. Here is a quotation:

"To cite but a single instance, at Monroe where citizens took law in their own hands to prevent illegal blocking of access to a steel plant—the mayor, Daniel Knapp was re-elected by an overwhelming vote."

When the special session of 1938 convenes at Lansing, it will be interesting to observe the fate of a labor relations bill in the Senate. There have been few developments to indicate that the conservative coalition has changed its attitude which "jelled" at the time of the 1937 sit-down strikes.

"Men killed" are two words of devastating power.

It is estimated that the Detroit industrial pool contains 100,000

Southern whites, few of whom ever intended to make Detroit their permanent home. Living in a "social vacuum," they respond without usual inhibitions to such of a billion bounty from Washington. Business in small towns is dependent, for the most part, upon prosperity on the farm. In view of this fact, we dare a prediction that business in 1938 will not be bad on Main Street.

Billion Bounty

The national farm income was the best since 1929.

Michigan's income increased 14 per cent, due mostly to marketing of holdover crops and despite a sharp decline in 1937 crop prices.

National receipts were almost double those of 1932.
